.....The study explores significant and innovative topics. However, the current explanation of the theoretical framework is lacking. In the Materials & Methods section, the authors provide a lengthy explanation for some commonly used, well-known time series and forecasting models. However, the motivation behind choosing these modeling approaches is not clearly stated. Further, the breakdown of the test and training set is not clearly mentioned. Additionally, due to limited data availability, I recommend that the authors consider using time series cross-validation to more thoroughly evaluate the models. ....
